Every issue of Popular Mechanics Magazine brims with tidings of what we are doing for one another; of the mistakes that have been made and the disasters which have followed; of the successes won and the activity incited by them, and of yet more wonderful discoveries and achievements which must certainly come. In the December number there are 310 articles and 252 illustrations, every short story tersely "written so you can understand it," and every picture vividly portraying more than can be told in type.

For Democratic people who are interested just now in Federal office statistics, it may be timely to state that there are at this writing 9,846 government positions, whose occupants are appointed by the President, subject to confirmation by the Senate. They are removable by the same authority that uses the appointing power. Of these Presidential offices fully 80 per cent., or 7,953, are in the postal service—postmasters, one for each town in which the postal receipts are over $1,000 a year.

For the first time in his experience Congressman A. O. Stanley faces the job of handing out official pie to a great many very hungry men. Post-office primaries would relieve the Congressman of the embarrassment, and as all congressmen are having the same troubles, this is being seriously proposed as a way out of it.

A curious combination of the Turkey trot and the Spanish fandango is the best description of the "chicken flip," the new dance invented by Miss Eleanor Sears and demonstrated by her at a recent gathering in Boston.

What is believed to be the smallest electric dynamo in the world, so small it could be placed on an American penny and not occupy all the space, is described in the December Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Refused a new trial, Floyd Allen and his son Claude Allen are to be executed tomorrow at Richmond, Va., for murders in the Hillsville court room last March.

Some of the interesting features of the funeral of the Emperor of Japan are shown in illustrations appearing in the December Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Seabree Springs Hotel was burned Saturday at a loss of $12,000 to $15,000. The insurance was $11,500, of which $5,000 was taken out the day before.

After all Idaho landed in the Wilson column by 1,100 votes, leaving Taft with only two states, Utah and Vermont, the latter by only 361 votes.

Kansas women are taking up their new duties as citizens by jury service, but they can never be equal to the men until they pay a poll tax.

LIVELY BIDDING

At Sale of Duroc-Jersey Hogs Yesterday.

When our forms closed yesterday afternoon the auction sale of Duroc-Jersey hogs was still going on at Dr. Isbell's stable. There was an immense crowd present and, from the very start, bidding was quite spirited. Col. H. L. Igleheart, of Elizabethtown, was the auctioneer and he is a fine one, too, some people believing he is the best that has ever been here. Before beginning the sale he delivered a lecture, in which he brought out the fact that every man who raises hogs should raise none but the best—it costs no more. If he quits auctioneering he ought to go to lecturing.

Three letters were found in the pockets of the dead man. One was from the Oregon Indian Medicine Company, Carry, Pa., and addressed to Jack Pemberton, Knoxville, Tenn. Another was from the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia, addressed to S. P. Nash, this city. The third was written at Madisonville, Ky., dated November 16th, addressed to Mrs. Jonnie Jones, Bowling Green, Ky., and signed J. D. ## FIRE NEAR POD.

North Christian Residence Destroyed by Fire.

Pod, Ky., Nov. 20.—Mr. Lee E. Cranor's residence was destroyed by fire late Saturday afternoon. Mr. Cranor was away from home. Mrs. Cranor was in the kitchen preparing supper when it was discovered that the building was on fire. Mr. Cranor's father had come down from Crofton and was out at the stable. He was quickly summoned and with the aid of near by neighbors who were attracted by the flames, succeeded in saving some of the beds and bedding and a few pieces of light furniture. Most of the household goods, however, were burned. The flames originated in an upstairs room, but no one knows how. No entrance could be effected to the room and but little was saved from the room immediately under it.

Mr. Cranor had just a few days before traded his farm to Mr. H. Y. Huddleston.

The loss on building and contents amounts to about $1,000, with $500 insurance.

SERVING MEANS MUCH

PROPERLY PLEASING THE EYE
IS HALF OF THE MEAL.

Artistic Molds for Food One of the Best Forms of Giving Satisfaction—Desserts, in Particular,
May Be Thus Displayed.

Half the pleasure of eating is through the eye. If food is well served and cooked, a meal is a success, though the quantity and variety of the food may be limited.

Molds play a large part in this dainty service. Everything, from fish to dessert, can be molded.

The ordinary mold is of heavy tin, but the woman who objects to using tin, especially for acids, for which tin should never be used, can buy earthenware or aluminum. These last two cost more, and in them there are fewer shapes.

Various sizes can be had, from a quart to many quarts. The very large ones are made to order. Individual molds are also popular, though the large ring or form shapes are more convenient and more fashionable for general use.

Probably the favorite mold for most purposes is a hollow ring, round or oval. The round ones are better liked, but either shape is good. These come with a lid for desserts that must be frozen, and without one for aspic, mousse, blanc mange and vegetables.

With one of these ring molds the clever hostess can even glorify hash or vegetable left-overs. Macaroni, put in a ring, with the center filled with creamed chicken, lamb or fish, makes an appetizing dish.

Mashed potatoes may be quickly formed into a hollow ring with one of these molds, the center being filled with lamb chops, creamed sweetbreads or fried chicken.

A simple dessert might have the ring of chocolate blanc mange, with nuts mixed through it, the center being filled with whipped cream. This may be slightly stiffened with gelatin if it will not hold its shape.

Nothing is prettier than a round or oval ring mold ice cream heaped high with fruit in its season, strawberries, raspberries, peaches, oranges and bananas. Home-made ice cream served this way has all the air of a novelty dessert. For further adornment whipped cream may be put on the top of fruit through a tube to make fancy forms.

Another good-looking dessert has sponge cake or cottage pudding batter baked in oval rings, large or individual, the center filled with chocolate russe, or Bavarian cream dotted with whipped cream in fancy design; a similar design is arranged around the base of the cake. Cottage pudding rings can be filled with fruit, tapioca, orange or pineapple.

Many of the hollow ring molds have fancy shapes, cones, turrets or flowers, but where pennies count the plain ones are more practical for all uses. Moreover, it takes a skillful cook to empty the contents of a fancy mold without marring it.

MACARONI AND CHEESE

DISH NOT SERVED AS OFTEN AS IT DESERVES.

Excellent for Luncheon or for the Evening Meal Without Meat—Italian
Method of Preparation
Somewhat Too Rich.

Macaroni with cheese is the most usual combination. This is a dish sufficiently nourishing to be served for luncheon or for an evening meal without meat. It is too heavy to be served with other starchy vegetables, as potatoes or beans. The foreign way of cooking macaroni is to boil about twenty minutes. Drain and return to the saucepan with enough gravy or rich soup stock to nearly cover. Allow this to simmer until the gravy has been absorbed. Prepare a cupful of grated Parmesan and other cheese mixed. Put one-half with the macaroni until the cheese is melted. Add the remainder and a good-sized lump of butter. Stir the macaroni around in the pan in one direction until the cheese is thoroughly melted. Serve hot. Americans, preferring a less rich dish, simply boil the macaroni, drain and put it back into the saucepan with grated cheese. It is served when the cheese is melted, but not hardened. We call this macaroni au gratin, but au gratin dishes proper are scalloped ones including bread or cracker crumbs as well as cheese.

Baked Macaroni and Cheese.—Take about one-half as much macaroni as will fill the baking dish. Break into short pieces and boil for twenty minutes in salted water. Drain. Put into a baking dish with butter, salt and a quantity of cheese. Cover with milk and bake until the milk is absorbed and it is brown on top.

Cheese canapés are small slices of bread fried in a little butter until golden brown. Then they are covered with grated cheese, seasoned with salt and pepper and placed in the oven to soften the cheese. Some add a little French mustard to the cheese to give it piquancy.

Cottage cheese is becoming more and more popular for salads at dainty affairs. It lends itself to any decorative scheme so nicely, it is delicious and cooling to the palate. The simplest way to arrange this salad is to moisten with French dressing and arrange in crisp lettuce leaves. With a little green vegetable coloring extract the balls of cheese may be delicately tinted to resemble birds' eggs. Cottage cheese lends itself to many combinations of chopped nuts, chopped olives, green or red peppers. It will mix with French dressing or mayonnaise and can be molded into any desired shape. It is a nice accompaniment to a fruit salad or is a salad in itself.

is hearty, vigorous life, according to Hugh Tallman, of San Antonio. "We find," he writes, "that Dr. King's New Life Pills surely give new life and energy to a nervous system. ## Noodles With Ham.

Grease a pudding dish well with fat or butter, place in the dish a layer of ham chopped very fine, then one of cooked noodles until the dish is full, having for the top a layer of ham. Then pour a cupful of cream over it. Bake in the oven for thirty minutes. To make the noodles for the above, break one egg into a bowl and stir in enough sifted flour to make a stiff dough and add one-quarter teaspoonful of salt. Knead it until it is dry. Divide it into two pieces, roll each piece until very thin and let them dry on a cloth. When dry roll them up like a jelly roll and slice into pieces one-half inch wide. Then unroll them and let dry. These can be kept for some time in a covered bottle. If they are wanted for soup they must be cut very fine.

Russian Steak Pudding.

A rather stiff paste of two pounds of flour, one and a quarter pounds chopped fat of kidney of beef, and one-quarter pint of water is made. When mixed, this is rolled out to a round layer, a quarter-inch thick and put in a buttered pudding dish. The lean beef is cut in pieces and arranged in the basin in layers. Cover with water, and put layer of paste over top.

The seasoning must be carefully gone, salt, red pepper, butter and a curious Russian spice is used by the dancer. Wrap the pudding dish in a buttered cloth and place it in a saucepan of boiling water. Cook it for three hours if the beef is tender and for four hours if not.

Orange Sherbet Cake.

Hollow out a loaf of angel cake, leaving a rim about an inch deep. Fill the center with orange sherbet, and grate orange peel over the top. Of course this sherbet must be kept in the freezer until just the time of serving, and be put in the cake just as it is taken to the table; otherwise it would be melted.—Harper's Bazar.

Baked Squash.

Put a layer of thick slices of summer squash into a baking dish which has been nicely buttered, then salt and pepper and dot over with pieces of butter and continue layers until the dish is full. Cover and bake two and one-half hours.

Carmelized Peaches.

Peel six peaches, put into the oven, cover with three tablespoonsful sugar and just enough water to keep them from burning. Cook for five or six hours in a slow oven.

Milk in Mustard.

If milk is used instead of water when mixing mustard for the table, it will look fresh for several days.

A paint brush is an excellent thing to remove dust from cracks and carved furniture. It reaches crevices where a dust rag never could find the dust. Try this when next you clean the baseboards, window sashes, etc. You will never be without a brush.

THE OLD SPORT'S KICK

—BY APPY—

The ring ain't what it used to be;
The grand old fistic game
Has had its day and gone its way.
'Twill never be the same.
No more the Harlem Spider shies
His castor in the ring,
No more the Jersey Chicken lands
His vicious jab and swing;

The Cyclone and the Thunderbolt
Have gone their various ways,
The Slasher and the Lanky Shad
Are things of other days.
No more they gamely toe the scratch
And put their dukes up raw,
No more with lusty lead and cross
The goodly claret draw.
But armed with 5-ounce pillows now,
They pirouette and pose,
And put on pretty postures for
The moving picture shows

They pull down purses that would pay
The ransom of a king
And pull off parlor matches in
A pretty padded ring.
They fiddle, sidestep, duck and sprint,
They spar and block and hug,
Where blowy boys of other days
Would stand their ground and slug.
But worst of all the ills that blight
The king of manly games,
They even go and rob it of
The old time-honored names.
No more we hear of Jem or Jock,
Of Paddy, Ted or Spike,
Ye gods! we read of Willie now,
And Freddie and the like!
I look for Champen Reginald
Afore the winter's through—
Great ghost of old Bill Spartacus!
What are we comin' to?

Many a man has dried up in a little wayside opportunity, merely because he lacked the courage to acknowledge to himself that his judgment had landed him in the wrong spot. ## Keep it to Yourself.

Worry yourself, if you cannot be happy otherwise, but why endeavor to cause other people to worry when there is nothing to be worried about?

Man's Eating.

One man likes to be made a fuss over, another likes to be let alone, and a third likes his mind diverted. But in all cases have something good for him to eat, whatever kind he is.

SIZE OF PATTERNS INCREASE.

A Washington department store manager has estimated that the increase in the size of patterns for stockings for American girls this season will add $300,000 to the hosiery manufacturers' coffers. Mrs. A. A. Bierney, president of the local organization of the Mothers' congress, says that the additional expense is for the good of the race.

Mrs. Bierney agrees with the Russian Countess Cazarine to the effect that Washington girls are too slender, but adds that they are improving. The feet of the Washington girl are getting bigger, she said today.

"Bigger feet and stronger, harder muscles are at last coming to our girls," she declared. "Such strong, athletic girls speak well for the future of the race. New York is making the same sort of progress. I wish other parts of the country were blessed with such girls as Washington and New York has."

PROVED TO BE TRUE?

The story that comes from the south that there are people there that do not know the war is over has been proved to be true—proved by the treasury department. A Louisville, Ky., woman sent in a dollar bill the other day with the following letter:

"I have had this bill for some time, but I have neglected to have it redeemed. In the meantime, however, I have acquired two little girls, and a dollar looks much bigger than it used to look. As its buying power seems to be steadily decreasing, I send it in while it is still worth 30 cents."

The treasury department immediately forwarded to her a perfectly good brand-new dollar bill, and informed her that it would get her exactly 100 cents' worth of goods anywhere she wanted to present it. That sounds fishy, but it is the honest truth.

One Thing Certain.

An amusing story is related of Lady Roberts, who was once visiting the hospitals at the base of military operations in India. So pleased was she with the untiring labor of the nurses and their devotion to the sick that she said to the officer in attendance, "I really think that the sisters deserve a medal for this campaign as much as anyone, and I hope they will get one." "Well, I don't know about a medal," said a gallant colonel standing by, "but they are sure at all events to get plenty of claps."

To Remove Varnish.

Three tablespoonfuls of baking soda in a quart of water, applied with a rough cloth, will remove the old varnish very easily when you wish to revarnish furniture.—Woman's Home Companion.

Nearly Smothered

Chandler, N. C.—Mrs. Augusta Lomax, of this place, writes: "I had smothering spells every day, so bad I expected death at any time. I could not sit up in bed. I suffered from womanly troubles. My nerves were unstrung. I had almost given up all hope of ever being better. I tried Cardui, and it did me more good than anything I had ever taken. I am better now than I ever expected to be." Thousands of ladies have written similar letters, telling of the merits of Cardui. It relieved their headache, backache and misery, just as it will relieve yours, if you will let it. Try Cardui.

The Greatest Woman.

Who was or is the greatest woman in all history? Two hundred Kansas teachers answered the question and with enthusiasm and unanimity the judges awarded the prize to the one who made this reply: "The wife of the farmer of moderate means who does her own cooking, washing, ironing, sewing, brings up a family of boys and girls to be useful members of society, and finds time for intellectual improvement."

Bee Sting Cause of Death.

While the Abbe Genoux, priest of the parish of Plagnes, France, was out walking at Annecy, a bee flew into his mouth and stung him in the back of the throat. The sting brought about acute inflammation and such a swelling of the throat that the priest died of suffocation within 20 minutes, after great suffering.

WHEN BRIDGET LEFT

"The order man's came, men," Anne Fairfax glanced up impatiently from her article on "Why My Servants Stay With Me," for the October Homebreaker Magazine, to face "the daily question."

"What have you in the refrigerator, Bridget?" she asked absently. Her thoughts were on higher things at present than the ordering of meats and vegetables.

"Nothin'," Bridget answered laconically.

"What! Nothing left of that big roast! And where is all the fruit Mr. Fairfax sent home yesterday?"

"Shure, I'm after lavin' this afternoon. I don't like bein' insinuated to be a thafe." And Bridget indignantly clattered down the narrow back stairs, banging the meaningless nursery gate after her. Some former tenant of the Fairfax abode had left that little gate in its present place, but Anne Fairfax thought, as she unlatched it, that she was glad, all things considered—her successful literary career, etc.—that, though married three whole years, she had "nothing but a wire fence running round the house."

"Three maids in one month!" she sighed as she followed the irate and slovenly Bridget into the culinary department of the Fairfax domicile. "No wonder I cannot 'get ahead' with my articles for the Homebreaker."

The window shades were rolled up crookedly, and in the hot sunshine thus admitted myriad flies buzzed merrily about the kitchen. The "order man" stood holding the screen door wide open, letting in more flies, which crawled here, there and everywhere. One jet of the gas stove was blazing high—for the pleasure and profit of the gas company, no doubt, for there was no sign of pot or pan in its vicinity, though a veritable mountain of them adorned the remains of breakfast, as it had been removed from the dining room two hours earlier; this was flanked on one side by an open bottle of milk, and on the others by a ruddy cluster of hair puffs and several hairpins!

"Bridget!" gasped Anne Fairfax, with one horrified glance about her kitchen, and rising in her wrath to almost queenly dignity. "You made a mistake when you said you were leaving this afternoon. You are leaving now—this very moment!"

The order man stepped quietly in and closed the screen door gently. He recognized the "lady of the house" quality in Mrs. Fairfax's accents. Bridget, cackling scornfully and fairly smoking with impudence, gathered up the fatal red hirsute adornments and shuffled up the back stairs to "pack," while Anne Fairfax ordered soap, ammonia, mops, brooms, scrub brushes, fly papers, etc., from the astonished "order man" till that worthy gathered up courage to ask, "Goin' to start housecleanin', Mrs. Fairfax?"

"No," snorted Anne Fairfax, "I'm going to clean this kitchen! Just look at it!" she wailed, forgetting her dignity. "That filthy creature has only been here one week, and look at it! And I thought she was keeping things clean!"

As soon as the kitchen was darkened and less full of the buzzing winged torments, Anne Fairfax tucked up her blue dimity skirt under a voluminous gingham apron, rolled her dainty sleeves above her rather frail-looking elbows and doubtfully attacked the sink and its greasy contents. After an hour's toil she decided to go down cellar and look at the refrigerator. "Ugh!" It is as I feared, and the cellar is so stuffy and musty.

Anne Fairfax climbed up on a chair to open a window, but rust and neglect had done their work, and bang and poke as she might the window refused to open till a more than usually vicious push brought success. It also brought a leg off the rickety chair, and Anne Fairfax was deposited with more force than dignity in the coal bin.

After a few moments of wondering that no bones were broken, our literary lady dragged herself up the cellar stairs and seated herself for one moment's rest.

"The cellar window's open, anyway. Now for the refrigerator." But not yet. Anne Fairfax had been unfortunate in her selection of a chair, already adorned by sticky fly paper. "Dear me!" she said after several minutes spent in futile effort to rid her dress of the adhesive nuisance, "I'll just have to leave it there till I've finished and can take my dress off. I never did like this blue dimity, anyway. Oh, there's no more hot water for the refrigerator! Never mind; I'll use a bucket of cold water, with lots of ammonia. Ugh!" gasped Anne Fairfax, after another hour of hard labor, "I'll have to throw out a lot of these scraps and bits. Servants are so careless. Oh, dear! there goes the telephone!"

"Hello—Mrs. Rockyfellow—Why Oh yes, indeed, I am glad to hear you're in town—tonight!—dinner—Mr. Rockyfellow, too—Oh—er—lovely—oh, perfectly convenient—No, I haven't written much lately—clever?—me?—Oh, no—be sure now—goo-oodby!"

Anne Fairfax gathered her trembling faculties together and descended to renew the attack on the refrigerator. She had just about finished this when the front door bell rang. "I'll just gather up these odds and ends and carry them with me. Why can a servant never seem to learn to make her head save her heels? Intelligence, I suppose. I'll take the bucket, too. Oh, have PATIENCE!" (this to the bell).

Halfway up Anne Fairfax stepped on the back of her rather narrow skirt—and all her hands being occupied—But why tell what happened? Suffice it to say that when Mr. Fairfax (who had forgotten his dead-latch key) finally secured an entrance by means of the one open cellar window, he found a blackened, disheveled, half-drenched "literary light" lying in a heap on the cellar floor surrounded by broken crockery mixed with odds and ends of cold beans and stewed tomatoes in a pool of cold, greasy water strongly tintured with ammonia.

After a tearful, garbled account of the morning's happenings had been sobbed into his sympathetic ears, "Never mind, dear," soothed Mr. Fairfax, "it's a good thing you are not hurt. We'll close up the old house and board for a while. Servants are the dickens!"

"Well—well—how about the Rockyfellers? They're com-coming to din-din-dinner."

"Bless the Rockyfellers!" gasped Mr. Fairfax. "Oh, well—see here, we'll take them to town—to a roof garden for dinner, so trot off and get—er—washed up and dressed. Why—what's the matter now?" for Mrs. Fairfax had fairly dissolved in tears.

"I—I—won't g-g-get my ar-ar-article off tonight—and it—it—it's SO IMPORTANT."

"What article, dearest?" asked Mr. Fairfax.

"That's just l-l-like a m-m-m-an," sobbed Anne Fairfax. "What article, indeed? My—my ar-article on 'Why My Ser-ser-vants St-st-stay With Me'—to be sure."—Buffalo Express.

LAST BUT NOT LEAST.

Farmer John and Farmer Turmut were having a talk over a glass of nut brown ale in the local inn. Though they had striven not to speak shop, their talk had gradually veered round to the one topic about which it was really worth chatting.

"How's yer corn?" demanded Farmer T.

"All right," was the reply.

"Pigs doin' well?"

"Fine," came the answer.

"That little pony of yours—quite well?"

"In good condition. My little pony went fourteen miles yesterday."

"Good crop of cabbages?"

"Excellent."

"Glad to hear it. How's the mis-"

us?—Answers, London.

THOSE $100,000 JOBS.

"Yes," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "there are $100,000 jobs waiting for young men who are competent to fill them."

"What requirements would you expect?"

"Well, he'd have to show that he was competent to establish and run as big a business as mine on his own account. And then, of course, he wouldn't need the job."

HELPING THE GAME.

"Bah!" exclaimed the Socialist. "Money is filthy lucre."

"Well, I've done the best I could today," replied the man who dabbles in stocks. "I've cleaned up a thousand dollars."—Lippincott's.

For Women Who Care

Of course you use an antiseptic in your family and in the care of your own person, and you want the best.

Instead of what you have been using such as liquid or tablet antiseptics or peroxide, won't you please try Paxtine, a concentrated antiseptic powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

Paxtine is more economical, more cleansing, more germicidal and more healing than anything you ever used.
